

Away, Away, Away

William Corkine, 'Second Book Of Ayres', 1618

A - way, a - way, a - way, call back what you have said, When Ah! A - way, a - way, call back what you have said, you did vow to live and die a Maid, O if you know what shame to You did vow to live and die a Maid, What shame to them be-fell, That dance a-bout with bob-tailed Apes in hell, You'd breake your them be-fell That dance with Apes in Hell Break oath, and for a worlde of gaine, From Hy-men's plea - sing oath for a world of gaine, From Hy-men's, Hy-sports no more ab - staine. Your Selfe your Vir-

- men's plea-sing sport not ab - staine. You your Vir - gin

- gin gird - le would di - vide, And put a - side, and put a-side, gird - le di - vide, And put a - side,

8 and put a - side the Mai - den vaile That hides put a - side the Mai - den vaile That hides the 8 the chief - est Jemme of Na - ture, And would lye, chief - est Jemme of Na - ture, of Na-ture, And would lye,

8 Pros - trate to ev' - ry pea - sant that goes by, Rath - er than un - der - Pros - trate to ev' - ry peas - ant by,

8 - goe such shame, No tongues can tell what in - ju - Ra-ther than un-der-goe shame, No tongues can tell what in - ju - ry is done

8 - ry is done to Maids in Hell. No tongues can tell what in - ju - to Maids, Maids in Hell. No tongues can tell what in - ju - 8 - ry is done to Maids in Hell.

 - ry is done, is done to Maids, to Maids in Hell.